Yes it's official...I will be leaving Switzerland on June 1st! There are lots of changes happening here at YWAM Burtigny, and while they are all good and exciting changes, I know that the time is right for me to move on. So of course that raises the question..."what's next?" And that is a question I don't have the answer to yet! I have different options that I'm considering, but I haven't made any decisions yet. Much of my free time at the moment is spent on getting ready to leave here - selling things, packing things, deciding what to get rid of and what to keep, etc. Then I'm preparing to hand over all aspects of my job to people who are staying. But I'm hoping in the next few weeks I'll be able to make some decisions about the future...I'll keep you posted!
